FOREWORD

The decennial Census, 1991 was conducted in February 1991 and the first and second series of the Provisional population totals have already been brought out by the Office of the Registrar General & Census Commissioner of India. These have been valuable guides to all of us in the National Literacy Mission for formulating proper plans of action for eradication of illiteracy keeping the total magnitude of the problem of population explosion as also the linkage between high literacy rate and population growth moderation in view. We are grateful to the Registrar General & Census Commissioner that for the first time in the history of Census, they have brought out literacy data for the population aged 7 years and above for the purpose of computation of the literacy rate as also the absolute number of literates on a specific request of the Department of Education.

An attempt has been made in this publication to present the latest available data on literacy for India, States and districts, which is necessary for planning of literacy programmes at different levels. An attempt has also been made to present comparative literacy situation for the population aged 7 years and above for earlier census years from 1951 onwards.

There are 9 tables in this booklet. The first table gives data relating to total population of the country by sex and its growth from 1951 to 1991. The second table gives Statewise distribution of the 1991 population by sex for all areas and rural areas. The third and fourth tables present information on population and literacy rates by sex for the population aged 7 years and above. While the fifth table gives detailed information on number of literates, literacy rates and illiteracy rates for the country by sex and rural/urban areas for the year 1991 for the population aged 7 years and above, the sixth table gives statewise distribution of the literates of this age-group by sex and by residence (all areas/rural areas). Comparative percentage of literacy for 1981 and 1991 for this age-group by States is presented in the seventh table and the eighth table indicates ranking of states on the basis of literacy rates of all persons, males and females. Last table contains districtwise information on total population and literates of the age-group 7 and above. As districtwise population figures for the age-group 7 and above are not yet available, districtwise literacy rates for the population aged 7 years and above have not been worked out. However, this data will give a fair idea of the literacy/illiteracy situation in the districts. Estimates of population at the District level for the age-group 7 and above can also be done by the concerned District and exact literacy situation worked-out for the purpose of planning literacy programmes.

We hope that this effort will be very useful in all activities pertaining to planning and monitoring of literacy programmes at different levels. This booklet is being brought out on the occasion of International Literacy Day on the basis of available data. We propose to include more details on the basis of 1991 census as soon as the same become available. We would welcome suggestions for improvement of this publication.

Planning and compilation of this booklet has been done by Shri Prem Chand, Deputy Director in the Directorate of Adult Education, whose analysis of the National Policy of population growth moderation since inception has been incisive and insightful. Shri SVS Subramaniam, Sr. Statistical Assistant has helped in verification of data. Typing assistance has been provided by Shri K. B. Handa, Ms. Shiela Lakra, Shri Rajeev Verma. The Publication Unit has arranged for its printing. The work of this booklet has been completed with speed and urgency under the guidance of Shi A. K. Basu, Director, DAE. I appreciate the tremendous efforts put in by Shri Prem Chand and other officers and staff of the Directorate of Adult Education in bringing out this booklet in time.
