X PLAN GUIDELINES ON THE SCHEME OF EPOCH-MAKING SOCIAL THINKERS OF INDIA : BUDDHA, GANDHI, NEHRU AND AMBEDKAR

1. Objective

India has produced great thinkers and social leaders who, by their revolutionary and pathbreaking thoughts and actions, have left a lasting impact on not only India, but on the world as a whole. They have developed indigenous ideas and have provided cultural and ethical identity to India. There is a great need to acquaint the teachers and students with their thinking and their work and to involve them in studies, research and field work based extension service programmes of constructive work.

The Indian University system owes its duty to the nation to conduct studies, research and extension programmes, which are pertinent and apply to their ideas in the reconstruction of human society on moral, ethical and spiritual foundations for a non-violent society.

In accordance with his rational approach to life, Buddha emphasised on the age old concepts of non-violence and social justice and tried to apply these concepts for the formation of an equalitarian society. Gandhi gave a social dimension to the concept of non-violence and demonstrated, both through his life and work, how it can be used as an instrument for fighting injustice at all levels. Nehru a great deal to the application of non-violence for resolving conflicts at the national, and more so at the international level, as well as modernisation of society with emphasis on science and rationality. Ambedkar stressed on the empowerment of the oppressed as a means of their release from exploitation and injustice, which are social forms of violence against the oppressed.

The ideas of all these four thinkers have a framework of interrelated ideas which are mutually supportive to each other and yield profound insights into the conditions of the individual, his/her personal being, in socio-economic and political life.

2. Proposals

The UGC extends financial assistance under this scheme to the university system for pursuing studies related to the thoughts and programmes of these leaders. The assistance to the universities is on the basis of selection among the applications for the establishment and the work of the Centres of Buddhist, Gandhian, Nehru and Ambedkar studies with the above mentioned objectives. The programme of Buddhist Studies is funded wherever there is facility for learning the 'PALI' and/or SANSKRIT LANGUAGE. Where there is no such facility, it can be attached to another appropriate department such as History, Philosophy, Sociology and Ancient Indian Culture. In the examination of the proposal, the prior work of the department in the respective areas will be taken into consideration. Proposals with innovative ideas will be given considerable weight age. Colleges which have already made a significant contribution in these areas could also be considered.

3. Operational Features

A university, wishing to set up one of these Centres, has to apply to the UGC with a project proposal. There is a Standing Committee of Experts in the UGC for such programmes and accepted proposals are supported by the UGC for a Plan period. The infrastructure such as building, furniture and supporting staff, which are essential for running the Study Centre, will be provided by the University. Any recurring liability shall be taken over by the State Government or the University. Therefore, such an undertaking should be given by the University at the time of application. No liability will accrue to the UGC after 31 March, 2007, no matter when the Programme was established in the University during the X Plan period.

While there may be a case for having Master's or M.Phil degree course in regard to such studies, it has to be considered by the University within other developmental assistance sanctioned by the UGC to the University under the Five Year Plan. Master's level and M.Phil courses are not to be covered by the assistance under these schemes. The assistance is available to set up a Centre in the area of any one of these Studies in the University and for conducting Programmes on the following lines.

- (a) Set up a Library and Reading room for teachers and students of the university and for scholars and other readers outside the university, so that an increasing number of persons become acquainted with the thoughts of these leaders.
- (b) Conduct a full-time or part-time course of about 3 to 6 months, or of similar duration, for a group of teachers/students of the university, functionaries of non-government organizations, corporate executives and government officers, focusing on particular aspects of thinking and work of these social thinkers.
- (c) Provide teaching support to other university departments by introducing or assisting in existing courses/papers on such studies indicated in different subjects off the department.
- (d) Organize seminars/lecture series on some identified topics on such studies. The proposal for holding a seminar must be referred to the UGC for the comments of the convener of the Standing Committee. Lecture series may be organized in the Centre or in any other suitable place and printed material of these lectures may be placed in the library for the use of the teachers, students and other interested persons even from outside the university.
- (e) Conduct research/studies in the thoughts and programmes of the above mentioned thinkers.
- (f) Conduct field work and action programmes on the basis of constructive programme enunciated by Gandhi, and action programmes related to the thoughts of the respective thinkers.

- (g) Understand and disseminate the concepts relating to Buddha, Gandhi, Nehru and Ambedkar and the philosophies enunciated by them, related to social justice and equity, conflict resolution, non-violence and non-violent protest-movement, empowerment of women, rural development and related topics.
- (h) Prepare modules of courses for short duration in the universities, established in the name of the respective thinkers, for the orientation of students, teachers and non-teaching staff.

It will be advantageous to study the Ideas of these personalities as interrelated studies. Besides these centres, centres for comparative studies may also be established for the study of specific areas of a thinker such as Netaji Subhash Chandra Bose, Pandit Madan Mohan Malviya, Dr.Radhakrishnan, Dr. Zakir Hussain, Swami Vivekananda, Rabindra Nath Tagore, Sri Aurobindo and Sardar Vallabh Bhai Patel etc.
